

FuGEN's Database Design & Development

FuGEN's consultants have extensive experience in IT Planning, Requirements Analysis, and System and Database Design. Our software engineers have designed and built numerous complex software database solutions.

Developing solutions with long-term value requires practical technology choices. When we designed software solutions we choose technologies based on the ability to ensure robustness and high quality throughout the solution's life.

Organizing a software project successfully requires a development methodology that fits the prerequisites of both the specific project and the client.

FuGEN aligns its development methodology to every project to support successful deployment total customer satisfaction. We have assessed at CMM Level 2, which illustrates its dedication to repeatable software development practices.
